

The National Resource Center on Domestic Violence is pleased to announce this newly-updated Special Collection featuring tools and resources to support advocates' community-based homicide prevention efforts:

INTIMATE PARTNER HOMICIDE PREVENTION (UPDATED JANUARY 2016)

This Special Collection explores the most tragic consequence of domestic violence and offers a variety of tools and information towards its prevention.

"If I die, I want you to tell the world what happened to me. I don't want other women to suffer as I have suffered. I want them to be listened to." ~ Maria Teresa Macias

THIS COLLECTION PROVIDES:

- national and statewide homicide statistics that help illustrate the scope of the problem;
- an overview of tools and strategies for assessing danger or the risk of lethality in domestic violence cases;
- recommendations and approaches for utilizing the fatality review process to prevent intimate partner homicide;
- materials describing various systems' responses to domestic violence and efforts to prevent homicide;
- resources to assist advocates in helping to frame the issue through media response and community mobilization; and
- resources addressing the grief and trauma experienced by loved ones of those whose lives are lost to domestic violence.
